BAND STORY

Thought it was time to set a page up here, seeing as there are so many friends here!

About me:

I've done my share of playing in bands over the years. Started out playing the piano at 4 years old, taught by my father, who had music coming out of every pore in his body. My first ever band was when I was 13, playing with my brother Tim and a couple of friends from the village where we grew up in the south-west of England. Trouble is my brother was 15, and he played keyboards too, and he was bigger than me, so I bought my first electric guitar and set to learning that.

Never got too good on the guitar, and when a couple of years later Tim left to join another band, I went back to the keyboards. Moved to London when I was 19, and got into a semi-pro band playing early 80s new romantic stuff, then quit my day job and joined a pro band playing jazz-funk around Europe for a year or so. Finally ended up in Edinburgh, where I picked up another day job and joined a band playing all over Scotland for the next 5 years.

Then came about 15 years of being "sensible" and making a career for myself, while I watched my brother playing on just about every major stage in the world and one or two old friends becoming household names. Finally came back to music in 2004, when I moved to France to get away from the rat-race and learn some recording techniques, although I still commute to London every week to earn my crust and keep the wheels turning.

These days I'm really just a songwriter. The years have taken their toll on the vocal chords, and they can't do what they used to, so whilst I perform all my songs on here, I would love for other people to try them too. If anyone feels like doing just that or likes what I do and would like some of my music for their words and vocals, then drop me a pm or an email to chris.moore@free.fr 2009 has been the first of collaborations with other musicians for about twenty years for me. I've been having a great time sharing songs with Gabriel Sabadi, Chris Georgiou, Kephias and Rob Grant - and I'm sure there will be many more songs to come!

Take care friends,

Peace and happiness to you all
